On October 8, 2014, the Planning Commission adopted revised "Farm Labor Housing (FLH) Application Process and Procedures," after extensive review by and input from the Agricultural Advisory Committee (AAC). In 2012, critical issues had arisen leading up to the need for these changes.

The first was that by 2012, staff had a backlog of 45 FLH applications in various, delayed states of review (some pending amendments, resolution of violations or renewal). At that time, with Supervisor Horsley's support, Planning staff sent surveys to nearly all FLH applicants/owners. The survey responses clarified for staff those FLH operations that: (a) had not proposed any changes (thus qualifying for renewal), (b) cited more FLH units (or less) than the respective FLH files had upon our last review (likely requiring a FLH permit amendment), or (c) no longer were active, due to the cessation of the supporting farming operation or other factors (requiring eventual follow-up to ensure that temporary or permanent FLH units were either removed or otherwise permitted with the required permits).

As a result of these issues, and upon a thorough review of the 45 cited FLH cases, 13 of those operations had responded back to Planning that neither the need for nor number of FLH units had changed on their respective properties. With the Certificate of Need Committee and actions since removed from the FLH application permitting process, the AAC's review assessed whether or not there is or remains (as in the case with renewals) the justifiable need and qualification for continuance of the FLH operation. The AAC recommended approval of all 13 FLH cases (including this case) over the course of two meetings, on April 13, 2015 and May 11, 2015.

DISCUSSION

A. KEY ISSUES

1. Conformance with the General Plan

Staff has determined that this Permit renewal is in compliance with the applicable policies of the General Plan's Soil Resources, Vegetative, Water, Fish and Wildlife Resources, Rural Land Use Policies, and Visual Quality elements.

2. Compliance with Planned Agricultural District (PAD) Zoning Regulations

The project is located on a parcel zoned Planned Agricultural District. Farm Labor Housing is allowed in the PAD with a PAD Permit. This case is a Renewal of the initial PAD permit last approved in 1999, having expired in 2004. No additional FLH units have been added or are proposed, there is no intensification of the ongoing FLH facilities or supporting uses or infrastructure and there are no pending zoning or Building violations. Also, as cited previously in this report, the AAC (who reviews all PAD Permits) reviewed and recommended approval of this application. As such, staff has determined that the application is in compliance with the PAD Regulations.

3. Compliance with Local Coastal Program (LCP) Policies

Given that the application is a PAD Permit renewal to allow the FLH facilities to continue (with the same caveat of no issues as cited above), staff has determined that the PAD Permit Renewal is in compliance with applicable policies of the LCP's Agricultural, Sensitive Habitats, and Visual Resources components.

4. Compliance with Revised Farm Labor Housing Application Policy

On October 8, 2014, the Planning Commission adopted revised "Application Process and Procedures for Farm Labor Housing." With that came the following changes, as applicable to this application: (1) elimination of the previous Certificate of Need Committee, whereby the AAC would determine a proposed FLH operation's justification as part of their review of the PAD Permit, and (2) clarification of the definition of a "farm laborer" as being a person who derives more than 20 hours per week average employment from on- or off-site agricultural operations (within San Mateo County) and earns at least half their income from agriculturally-related work. As cited previously in this report, the AAC's review of this application confirmed that the need for the FLH operation exists and that the farm laborers occupying the subject housing met the definition.

5. Agricultural Advisory Committee Review

At its April 13, 2015 and May 11, 2015 meetings, the Agricultural Advisory Committee recommended approval of this project on the basis that it will have no negative impact to the surrounding agricultural uses on the property and that the Farm Labor Housing unit complies with the PAD regulatory criteria for FLH units as well as those criteria of the revised FLH Application and Process policy.

B. COMPLIANCE WITH CONDITIONS OF THE LAST APPROVAL

The applicant is also proposing to renew the existing PAD Permit granted in 1985.
